PIPE LINE OFFICIALS CLAIM DEEDS REASONABLE AFTER ATTORNEY GENERAL WARNS

In a statement at Augusta Tuesday Attorney General Frank Cowan warned property owners to seek legal advice before signing deeds presented them by representatives of the Portland Pipe Line Company.

The company's pipe line is already laid for several miles in the State, having crossed the New Hampshire-Maine line into Gilead Sunday afternoon, and most of their right of way is cleared for several miles in advance of the pipe-laying operations.

Attorney General Cowan said "Apparently there is an attempt to lead these farmers to sign deeds to the Portland Pipe Line Company which actually mean they would convey such broad rights that their farms would have no actual sales value."

"Under the deeds, the Pipe Line Company can enter such farms at any time in the future, take additional land strips whenever it sees fit and pay no more for these than for the original strips. It could take such strips without regard to location of buildings or tillage land for farm operation."

He said that the deeds defined no width of strips which the company might take, and a clause in the instruments would stipulate that the farmer could not seek court redress. Because the deeds would grant exclusive rights to the company, the farmer would be prevented from selling his farm.

It is claimed by the pipe line officials that this form of deed has been in use many years and they believe this is the first time it has been questioned as unfair or misleading. In the deed the company agrees to pay for all damages to grass, timber, growing crops and improvements, which may result from its acts or omissions in laying, maintaining, operating, replacing, changing or removing the pipe line.

FOOD RETAILERS MEET TO LEARN OF STAMP PLAN, SOON IN EFFECT

Eugene Dorr, Chairman of the Surplus Food Committee in Oxford County, urged every food merchant in the county to attend the meeting which was held in the Municipal Building at Rumford Wednesday evening, July 23rd. At this time the Stamp Plan was fully explained in order that each store in this area should be thoroughly familiar with the rules and regulations of the Food Stamp Plan. Anthony F. Navoy of the Surplus Marketing Administration was present to outline the details of how the food retailers may accept Food Stamps in trade from customers receiving public assistance. The trade also learned about how simple it is to turn Food Stamps into cash. This procedure includes pasting stamps on stamp cards provided by the Surplus Marketing Administration. The retailer then turns the stamp cards over to his wholesaler for collection.

It is expected that the Food Stamp Plan will be in operation on a state-wide basis in Maine on about August 1st. As soon as the Plan is placed in operation no more Surplus Commodities will be given away. The Food Stamp Plan is a new method of distributing surplus commodities through the normal channels of trade.

All those who are eligible to participate in the Plan in Oxford County will be notified and will receive an Identification Card. They will purchase from the Stamp Issuing Officer orange stamps in amounts depending upon their category and family size. The amount of orange stamps which each individual family will purchase will come to approximately the same figure as that which they are now spending for food.

The orange stamps may be used in any retail food store in Oxford County to purchase any food used for human consumption that is not consumed on the premises, with a few exceptions. The blue stamps, which are given free, may be used to purchase those foods that are designated as surplus from time to time by the Secretary of Agriculture.

For every dollar's worth of orange stamps that the participant purchases he will be given free 50 cents worth of the Blue Stamps. In other words, the Food Stamp Plan will increase the food consumption of these people by 50 per cent. The stamps will be accepted by grocery stores as cash and householders will pay for whatever they buy by turning over stamps to the value of what they have purchased. All purchases may be made from the grocer's regular stock at his regular prices. The only difference that the stamp user will encounter will be that the grocer will not give money as change. If the amount of the sale does not equal the nearest even amount in stamps he will be given a credit slip to be used the next time food is purchased from that store.

A Surplus Foods Committee for Oxford County has been set up, which consists of the following people: Eugene Dorr, Chairman, Mexico; Samuel Swett, Secretary-Treasurer, Rumford; Myron C. Bryant, Bethel; H. Latt, Denmark. The Surplus Foods Committee will cooperate with the Surplus Marketing Administration in organizing the Food Stamp Plan in this county, and assist in the future in helping any of the grocers in this territory with any problems that might come up in connection with the Food Stamp Plan.

Work started Tuesday on the construction of a new sub-station of the Central Maine Power Company here. The new station will be of all-steel construction. New stations of wood and steel will also be built at Locke Mills, Bryant Pond, West Paris and Chadbourn's mill.

$300 RAISED FOR BETHEL'S U. S. O. FUND

The local fund for the United Service Organization has reached a total of $304.21, with the possibility of other contributions during the next few days. Several of the outlying districts were not canvassed and a large part of the amount received to date consists of unsolicited gifts.

A group of girls, organized by Mrs. Alma Thurston, Mrs. Doris Lord, Miss Maxine Clough and Miss Marguerite Hall, conducted the work in Bethel village, Mayville, Skillingston and West Bethel. The girls who took part in the canvass were Marcia Smith, Alice Bennett, Carol Robertson, Elizabeth Gorman, Barbara Luxton, Dora Gallant, Betty Perkins, Carolyn Perkins, Beatrice Forbes, Margaret Hanscom, Colleen Bennett, Ruth McInnis, Betty Warren, Betty Smith, Patsy O'Brien.

The amount solicited was $52.46 and direct contributions were $251.75.

It is believed that as the purpose of the U. S. O. becomes better understood, more and larger individual contributions will be forthcoming. This organization is a voluntary group which pools the resources of the Salvation Army, Y. W. C. A., Y. M. C. A. National Travelers Aid Association, Jewish Welfare Board, and National Catholic Community Service. The purpose of the group is to maintain social service centers near the large training centers and defense areas.

WATERFORD PUMPING STATION UNDER WAY—6 HOMES FOR CREW

Rapid progress is being made on the construction of the pumping station of the Portland-Montreal oil pipe line on the Shedd farm in Waterford, which was begun on Tuesday of last week. Williams Brothers Corporation, pipe line contractors of Tulsa, Oklahoma, are building all of the eight stations on the line, and the superintendent of construction here is C. G. Humphries of Louisiana.

The first concrete, about 110 yards, was poured yesterday at the boiler house location, and two tons of steel were used as reinforcement. Other excavations are for the manifold pit and the foundation of a storage tank of 35,000 barrel capacity. There will be two 500 horsepower electric pumps.

Several of the men employed in the work are from Louisiana, Texas and Oklahoma, and considerable local help is used. The equipment now in use includes a large bulldozer, power shovel and drag line. Six bungalows will be built to house living quarters for the operating crew of the station. Other pumping stations in the vicinity will be built at Raymond, Maine, Gorham and Lancaster, N. H.

SCRAP ALUMINUM TO BE COLLECTED THIS WEEK

Rural communities in Oxford County have been organized to assist with the campaign to collect scrap aluminum this week. This aluminum is to be used by the government in the production of equipment for National Defense. The campaign is nation-wide and Governor Sumner Sewall has assigned the responsibility to the Maine Civilian Defense Committee. He has appointed Paul C. Thurston of Bethel as chairman of the campaign in Oxford County. County Agents have been asked to assist by appointing committees in the rural areas. These committees will organize a house to house canvass to collect unused aluminum articles. Everyone is urged to give all worn out and broken utensils. They will assist materially by having this aluminum ready when the collector calls. It should be definitely understood that no one is asked to give anything that is still useable. In fact, the government committee warns against giving anything that would have to be replaced by some other article made of metal.

The aluminum drive in this district is in charge of Guy Bartlett, chairman, assisted by Mrs. A. D. Forbes, Mrs. Myron Morrill, William C. Chapman, and Adrian Grover. A meeting of the committee was held Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Forbes and Friday afternoon was the date set for collection. People that are expecting to be away from home will please leave their aluminum by the door for the collectors.

R. F. D. CARRIERS SELLING DEFENSE SAVINGS STAMPS

Thirty-two thousand rural mail carriers are now acting as agents in the sale of Defense Savings Stamps, postal officials have informed the Treasury Department. Demand for the stamps in sparsely settled districts caused the Post Office Department to authorize the carriers to act as salesmen.

The stamps range in value from ten cents to five dollars. Purchasers are given albums in which they can be mounted. When filled, the albums may be exchanged for Defense Savings Bonds.

Post Office officials recalled that rural mail carriers acted in similar capacities in 1917 and 1918 selling War Savings Stamps.

MAIN STREET IMPROVED

A marked improvement on Bethel's main street is the fill made recently so that the street surface follows the grade of the new sidewalk near the new theatre. The tar surfacing was applied during the past week and now the entire length of Main Street seems to be smoother than usual. But at the foot of the street the railroad crossing is not so good.

DEFERMENT SUGGESTED AS N. E. FARM LABOR IS DECREASED 25.1 PER CENT

With the supply of farm labor in the country 17.8 per cent below normal the shortage figure for New England is reported at 25.1 per cent, the highest percentage quoted for any area.

Recently Major Bartlett of the State Selective Service Office wrote local boards as follows: "According to statistics the New England States have lost 25.1% of their farm labor. This office, therefore, respectfully requests that you give serious consideration to the deferment of men now employed on Maine farms. It is suggested that wherever possible, you place such men in Class III-A, if there is any relationship that would allow you to so classify them as having dependents."

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery. Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. THURSDAY, JULY 24, 1941

A great many people in the United States are coming face to face with a grave and puzzling problem.
They are good citizens who want to do their part in serving the best interests of their homeland.On every hand, these men and women hear the call for national unity. They recognize the importance of a united nation in a time when nearly all the rest of the world is in complete upheaval.But another factor enters the picture. Each of these men and women has a conscience and a mind. The freedom to listen to their consciences is an inherent part of their American citizenship.The integrity of the individual is the very basis of the American form of government and the American way of life. Yet that integrity is now challenged, in the name of defending our very existence.If it be traitorous to any this, we must plead guilty to that charge, but we sincerely believe that it is never the duty of any American to follow blindly. And certainly it is not the duty of any American to give allegiance to a course which he believes will be disastrous to his nation's welfare.We recognize the importance of a united effort for defense of our nation, but we cannot reconcile that necessity with an alleged need for placing this country in the role of world policeman and world policy maker.We believe it is our fundamental right, ahead of every other concern, to continue to protest against policies of intervention from which we can gain little or nothing and which might easily mean the loss of everything we hold most important.It is our continuing belief that the life of one American boy is more important to this nation than the fate of the entire European continent. That, as we see it, is Americanism—Americanism as opposed to the European doctrine that the state comes before the individual. — Acorn, Oakland, Iowa.+

PICTURING CHILDRENStory-telling pictures of children are easy to make. They're not only more lifelike, but far more appealing.A FRIEND of mine, who is an ardent amateur photographer, recently showed me quite a collection of pictures he had snapped of his children over a period of years.
One thing I noticed in particular—
there were very few stiffly posed "record" shots. He had endeavored to make each picture tell a story of some kind, to depict some activity in the lives of his children—the story-telling type of snapshot.The typical "record" shot has its place in any album or collection of snapshots, but they should be considered the exception and not the rule. It is true that in this kind of picture taking you get a good likeness of the child as far as facial expression is concerned, but you don't have a real story-telling picture of this active little youngster.
It just isn't natural for a healthy,
sprightly child to stand around doing nothing.Play makes pictures. I don't mean that the child should be scurrying around or engaged in some fast-moving activity. Have your child
"repairing" his tricycle, reading a book, playing with dolls, snilling a boat in a wash tub, and with his pet—always an appealing, natural shot. Then you'll have a better and a more interesting album.This appealing picture of the little girl baking a pie was taken with the aid of photo lights, replacing the regular bulbs in home lamps,
and aided by handy cardboard reflectors. High speed film was used in the camera and a snapshot expo-sure was given. This is but one of a series showing the child from the time she started making her pie until she took it out of the oven. An interesting series of pictures like this should be cherished by any parent.The arrival of summer offers innumerable picture opportunities for outdoor snapshots of children. With your camera always ready for action you can capture many of their interesting activities. Oftentimes, a tempting idea—playing jacks, skipping rope, shooting marbles—will be all that is needed to get things going. Of course, the focus, exposure setting, and camera position should be determined in advance.
A handy exposure guide will be a valuable aid in getting well exposed pictures."Posing action" is a trick you can often use in picturing children. Suppose, for example, you want a picture of your son riding his tricycle,
but your camera will not take fast moving objects. Ask him to show you how he looks when he goes racing down the street, and, as he leans over the handle bars, snap the picture. In like manner, many interesting "action" shots can be posed but the final print will convey all the feeling of motion.Snapshots of children "doing something" give you a natural and genuine likeness. Make as many story-telling pictures as possible, and notice how the appeal of your album is greatly increased.

"THE GREAT LIE" COMING TO BETHEL SUNDAYThe new Bette Davis starring picture, "The Great Lie," will make its local debut Sunday at the Bethel Theatre. George Brent is co-starred with her, and Edmund Goulding directed. This is the same trio which collaborated on such outstanding screen successes
as "Dark Victory" and "The Old Maid.""The Great Lie" is the love story of a magnificent cheat. In it, Bette Davis has what many previewers have pronounced her finest role to date. Twice winner of the Academy Award, Miss Davis seems to have a faculty for topping herself in each successive film that she makes. Critical acclaim on her recent picture,
"The Letter," reached so high a peak that it was felt that she could not top it. But according to all advance reports, the screen's first lady has done just that in "The Great Lie." A deeply moving story of the heights to which a woman can rise for the man she loves, the new film gives Miss Davis her first opportunity in years to portray a normal, modern American girl completely without any of the "menace" which accompanied a character such as she played in "The Letter."The feminine "menace" in "The Great Lie" is ably portrayed by Mary Astor, who returns to the screen to give the year's surprise performance. Brent is said to be exceptionally well cast in the leading male role, and the fine supporting cast includes Lucille Watson, Hattie McDaniel, Sam McDaniel, Russell Hicks, Thurston Hall, and Jerome Cowan.

CHAPTER I

With a grinding of brakes the Imperial Express came to a stop at Nottaway, a huddle of log buildings and frame shacks buried in the eternal spruce traversed by the Canadian National. Beyond the clearing a steel bridge spanned the upper Nottaway River which flows north to James Bay. The attention of the idlers at the shack of a station was suddenly focused on a russet-haired giant carrying a cased gun, duffel bag and a surveyor's transit, who blocked the platform door of a sleeper. He swung to the ground followed by a wide-shouldered young man with penetrating agate-gray eyes. From the Scotch station agent, who nodded, to two half-breeds who whispered, heads together, as they watched the travelers, the gray eyes missed nothing. The strangers left their dunnage and started for the head of the train. Reaching the staring half-breeds, the larger man stopped.

"Bo-jo! What's the secret, Mac?" he threw at the surprised pair.

Blood leaped to their sullen faces as one said: "Nobody spik to you!"

"But you strain your eyes looking, don't you? You're figuring what my name and age is and where I'm from? Well, I always aim to please. I'm four years old; my name's Marie and I've forgotten where I'm from! That help any?"

The listening group of loungers waited with caught breaths as the scarred face of the taller breed filled with blood. His yellow eyes blazed as they measured the man who slouched, big wrists hands on hips, smiling at his discomfort. For an instant his right hand hovered over his coat pocket, then left it as his companion seized his arm.

"You look for trouble here?" he snarled.

"Brother, I thought you were after information," drawled the amused giant. "And I was giving you some. Of course, if you can't use it—Well, a'voir, M'leu!" With a careless wave of his hand the russet-haired young man joined his waiting companion.

"Don't start anything here, Red!" cautioned the dark man. "It's too early. We've got to look around. But you sure got the goat of that Burntwood."

"I meant to! That bird looks like a bad boy to me. He needs a spanking."

"Good job somebody did on his face with a knife!"

At the head of the train the travelers found a blocky individual alighting from an eighteen-foot Peterboro canoe from a baggage car. His high cheekbones, slits of eyes and crow-black hair marked a strain of Indian blood. Watching the proceeding fretted a huge airdale.

"All right, Blaise," said the man with the gray eyes, "we'll give you a hand!"

The airdale leaped on the speaker who grasped the dog's hairy jaws. "Hello, Flame, old partner! The bush smell good after the train, boy?"

Depositing the canoe on the slant of the railroad fill, the man called Blaise said: "We got to rush dat grub off! Dis train not stop for long time!"

Shortly a leap of dunnage and provision bags lay beside the track. The square-built Blaise tossed the canoe to his shoulder and started down a path to the river.

"Well, Red," said Garrett Finlay, "my guess is that those two breeds at the station might know something we came a long way to learn."

"Before we leave this great city of six shacks and a store I'm going to make some talk with these breeds."

"They're altogether too keen to know who we are and where we're going. We'll give them a chance to find out, tonight," said Finlay. "Down the line they say no one at Nottaway will talk. Before we start we'll find out why."

"Chief, we can't go back, you and Blaise and me, until we do find out. We've burned our bridges! It's sink or swim, now!"

The bronzed face of the other hardened while lights flickered in his deep-set eyes. "Right, Red! We'll get to the bottom of this if it takes all winter and God help somebody when we do!"

After supper the friends separated. Leaving Malone in conversation with Cotter, the storekeeper, Finlay went to the house of the station agent, McLeod.

"So you're going to the bay on the survey?" observed the Scotchman, glad of the chance for a gossip with someone from the "outside."

"Yes, we're meeting the main party at Rupert House."

"Wintering there, eh?"

"Oh, yes. We won't get out until next fall. By the way, what's all this mystery about, here, Mr. McLeod?" threw out Finlay.

McLeod shot a sidelong glance over the steel rims of his spectacles at his wife's troubled face before he answered: "You noticed something?"

"Noticed something? The place seems scared to breathe! When I asked Cotter who this Isadore was who has the big store-house here, he looked at me as if I was throwing a gun on him."

Again the eyes of McLeod and his wife locked. "What did Cotter tell you?"

"Why, he said Isadore was a big fur man on Lake Waswanipi. He had a depot here because all his stuff went in from the railroad. But when I asked him if any prospectors were going into the Chibougamau this way he acted like a scared rabbit. I understand that three parties who tried it were reported drowned in the rapids. But what's mysterious about that?" demanded Finlay with assumed innocence.

McLeod's pale blue eyes squinted hard at his caller. "Young man, I've been on this section of steel only six months. My business is railroading. Your job is surveying for the government. What's going on in the bush two hundred miles north of here ain't my business. Is it yours?"

Finlay slowly smiled. "Then there is something going on in the bush north of here," said Finlay. "I've had my answer."

"Yes, you've had your answer," admitted McLeod, drily. "But, mind you, I'm deaf, blind, and dumb."

Finlay took a sheet of paper from his wallet and folded it to expose a single line of writing at its foot. He leaned and showed the folded sheet to the station agent. "I wonder if you'd recognize that handwriting, Mr. McLeod?" he asked.

While his wife peered over his shoulder, McLeod read the line aloud:

"I don't believe these six men were drowned."

The station agent nervously cleared his throat. "Never saw that handwriting before!" he replied, with a shake of the head, while Finlay caught a look of suppressed excitement in Mrs. McLeod's pink face.

"You don't think that anybody in Nottaway wrote that letter, then?" The Scotchman's faded blue eyes snapped. "No, I don't want anything to do with it!" he spat out. "Where did you get that letter?"

"It was sent to my family at North Bay. Robert Finlay, one of these six men, was my brother."

"Tch! Tch! Ten bad!" murmured Mrs. McLeod.

"So you're here to investigate?"

"No, I'm here on survey duty—bound for James Bay! Naturally, after our getting that letter I'm asking questions while I'm here." Finlay looked significantly at the McLeods. "But it looks as if no one dared answer them."

"I'm sorry," said McLeod, "but all I can tell you is that Isadore reported that the canoes of the parties had been found by Waswanipi Indians."

Finlay frowned. "Hasn't Isadore's freight already gone down river?" he suddenly demanded.

"Yes, weeks ago."

"Then the two breeds, here, who were so curious when we left the train are lookout men?"

McLeod blinked into the stare that drove into his. "Lookout men? I don't understand."

"I mean that they're checking on every canoe that leaves here for the north. What I'm asking you, Mr. McLeod, is who are they checking for and why?"

McLeod coughed, caught his wife's warning eyes, then replied: "If you think there was something suspicious about your brother's disappearance, why don't you bring in the provincial police?"

"I haven't got a thing but this letter—not a thing. But there's one

"Nobody spik to you!"

question I'd like to ask you. Why does this fellow with the knife slash on his face pack a gun? What's he afraid of?"

"You're pretty shrewd, Mr. Finlay, you'll have to judge for yourself. I don't know."

After a chat about lower Ontario, the McLeods' home country, Finlay bade them good-night. As he left the house he saw the taller of the half-breeds who had watched his arrival at Nottaway with such interest. Finlay's curious eyes studied the man who was evidently waiting for him in front of the frame store, which carried on a spruce plank above the door the name "J. Cotter."

Approaching the half-breed, he called: "Fine evening!"

The other grinned, slapping vigorously at his face and neck. "Good night for bug, al-so!"

Finlay lost no time in getting to the point. "You know the river to the Bay?"

The breed nodded. "You headin' for de Bay on survey?" he asked.

"Yes, we're heading for Rupert. The river runs pretty hard for a hundred miles below here, I hear."

"Plenty strong water on all dese rivers! Two men drown last year!" Finlay closely watched the flickering eyes as he said: "And four the year before, but that was on the Waswanipi, they tell me!"

"Ah-hah!"

"I see that the Hudson's Bay and Jules Isadore have depts here," observed Finlay, nodding at the storehouses beside the track. "Who is this Isadore?"

The half-breed gaped in surprise. "You nevare hear of heem?"

"No."

"Wal, you not see hees place on Nottaway Trail."

"He does a big fur business, I judge, by the size of his depot."

"Ver' beeg business," he agreed.

"Ver' beeg! McLeod, he talk wid you 'bout Isadore?"

Finlay laughed inwardly. "No, he says he's new here, doesn't know Isadore."

"Ah!"

As yet the man who had evidenced such curiosity concerning the survey party had not shown his hand. Then Finlay abruptly brought the matter to a head. "You work for Isadore?"

"Yes."

"My name is Finlay. What's yours?"

"Louis Batoche."

"You handle his freight?"

"Yes. Now M'leu' Finlay," returned the other with a grimace, "I ask you question. W'y you go by dis way to Rupert and not by easy trail to Moose?"

Finlay laughed. So that was the nigger in the woodpile? They wanted to know why the survey party was taking the Nottaway Trail to the Bay. He answered disarmingly: "Oh, we're going to make a new survey of the Nottaway from Lake Matagami to Rupert Bay. Otherwise we'd have gone by Moose."

Garry narrowly watched the effect of his explanation. The half-breed lifted his brows in seeming surprise as he replied: "Ah-hah! I see!"

The answer appeared to satisfy Batoche's curiosity. His eyes dropped to the river shore where the smoke from Blaise's smudge fire hung in the spruce tops. Then his gaze shifted to a tent above the bridge.

"Who are those men camped there, prospectors?" asked Finlay.

Batoche laughed. "Dey head for de Rouyn contree."

"Not interested in trying for the Chibougamau?" Finlay watched the other closely.

Batoche's eyes glittered. "Chibougamau?" he sneered, "Onlee fool head for de Chibougamau from here!"

"And they paid for it by drowning in the Waswanipi rapids—all of them."

Batoche's pale eyes probed the inscrutable face of the white man, then shifted to the spruce ridge, beyond the river.

"Onlee Montagnals Indian travel dat Waswanipi. It ees bad water. De prospector all go in from Lac St. Jean."

"I hear that Isadore's people found a piece of a canoe."

"For sure! All smash up below beeg rapide on Waswanipi!"

"Which party was that?"

"Two young fallar who go in last year wid Peterboro canoe."

Finlay's eyes clung for an instant to the purple ridge as pain lanced through him. "That's all they found—no bodies or outfit?"

Batoche shook his head. "Dat's all!"

"Well, I'm much obliged," said Finlay. "I've got to see my man, Brassard. We'll be pushing off in the morning."

"Bo-jo!" replied Batoche as Finlay left him and started for the camp on the river shore.

In the meantime, down on the river shore, Blaise Brassard had been smoking in the lee of his smudge fire before a small A tent with a cheescloth mosquito drop. Near him lay the big airdale.

"Flame," said the ruminating Brassard, exhaling a cloud of pipe smoke, "you and Blaise got big job dis summer. W'at you t'ink?"

The dog raised his head. His three-cornered eyes gazed fixedly through shaggy brows as if he understood and agreed. Then he suddenly stiffened, ears cocked, rose to his feet and stood with head thrust forward peering into the scrub.

"Ah-hah! Somebody comin'!"

The hair on Flame's neck and back lifted as his throat swelled in a menacing rumble.

Blaise quieted Flame as a figure appeared in the path leading down from the railroad fill.

"Bo-jo!" returned Blaise.

The half-breed's eyes roved over the heaped bags; then he turned to Brassard. "You on survey?"

The thick muscles under Blaise's shirt tightened at the insolence of the other's manner. But his seamed face might have been carved from wood. "Ah-hah!" he said, easing a cloud of smoke from his mouth.

"My name is Joe Flambeau. I work for Jules Isadore!" announced the caller. "What your name?"

"I am Big Windigo from Devil Valley! I eat Nottaway Riviere man for supper!" The twinkle faded to a cold stare.

At the calculated affront the other sucked in his breath. "By gar! You consult Joe Flambeau!" he choked. Then Flambeau's groping fingers found and closed on the bone handle of the knife under his coat.

"Don't pull dat knife!" Brassard's voice was as brittle as shell ice. But his thick right hand did not move from the pipe in his teeth.

"Look bein' you!" he said. Flambeau turned his head. Feet bunched under him, the big airdale crouched like a panther, his eyes watching Blaise for the signal to leap.

"You pull dat knife and dat deland on your back and rip your throat!"

Flambeau's hand moved away from his knife handle. "I don't come here for trouble!" he said weakly. "I talk business wid you."

"Forget w'at I say!" appealed Blaise. "I don't mean nothin'. W'at you want, Flambeau?"

"W'y you take Nottaway trail to de Bay?"

"We survey lower riviere."

Flambeau surprised Blaise with: "Dese engineer pay you small wages. I get you job wid big money."

"Who wid?"

"Isadore! You are stout man. Isadore pay big money for strong man on de riviere."

It was growing interesting. Blaise took the bait. "Ah-hah! W'at you pay?"

"Double w'at you get! Leave dese men and dey will not make survey alone."

Blaise threw back his head and laughed. "You notice dat redhead?"

"Ah-hah!"

"He is Injun in white water! Finlay will run anyting. Dey go to de bay widout me."

Flambeau scowled. "Batoche will talk wid you at daylight, here."

"Ah-hah!"

"Isadore give you big pay. Shake hand!"

Blaise rose and extended a thick paw. Then he deliberately tossed his bombshell. "W'y do Isadore watch de Nottaway like a fox watch a rabbit run? He strike gold on Waswanipi?"

Flambeau's jaw sagged as he stared at the cryptic face of the speaker. "Mebbe he got gold! Mebbe! You come wid us and fin' out! I see you at daylight."

Shortly Finlay and Malone joined Blaise at the camp on the shore.

"This dump is sure stumped!" snorted the giant, filling and lighting his pipe. "Can't get a soul to talk! From the way they shut up you'd think the bush north of here was full of cockeyed, man-eating Windigo!"

"Who'd you talk with?" asked Finlay.

"Cotter the storekeeper's as scared as a fox in deep snow with a lynx on his trail. The rest are the same way. You see McLeod?"

"Yes. I showed him the last line of the letter sent to the family and asked if he recognized the writing. By the look in his wife's face I believe he wrote it himself."

"Let's see that letter, again, Garry! When Cotter asked me to register, I saw in his book some writing on a loose sheet signed by McLeod."

Finlay handed Malone the letter he carried in his wallet and the latter read aloud:

"To the family of Robert Finlay, North Bay, Ontario:

"Last spring Robert Finlay and his partner, Andrew Troup, left Nottaway bound for the Chibougamau gold country by way of the Waswanipi River. In the fall it was reported, here, that Montagnals Indians had found their smashed canoe. This is the third party that has disappeared on the Chibougamau Trail in two years. There are people who have reasons why they don't want prospectors traveling Waswanipi water."

"I don't believe these six men were drowned."

"A Friend."

THIS WEEK IN DEFENSE

The War Department asked Congress for legislation to retain the National Guard, Reserves and Selectees for the duration of the emergency. President Roosevelt told his press conference that unless Congress acts the Army faces serious disintegration.

The President said no violation of contract or faith would be entailed in such extension of service, because the Selective Service Act had provided for such extension of service by Congress in the event of a national emergency.

The War Department announced initial deliveries of the A-24, a new dive bomber that can outperform those used by other nations. The Department said rifles and sub-machine guns are now being produced at a daily rate of 1,500, compared with 289 one year ago. Under Secretary Patterson issued a statement of Army progress showing expenditures increased six-fold in the past fiscal year.

Lend-Lease Aid

President Roosevelt sent Lend-Lease Administrator Hopkins to London for a new survey of British needs, and assigned two Army generals to speed the flow of munitions and food to Britain. The Surplus Marketing Administration purchased 30,000,000 pounds of tobacco, 2,544,000 bushels of corn and 75,000 bales of cotton for shipment abroad under the Lend-Lease program.

Civilian Supply

The OPACS announced a program to give preference over other civilian needs to repair and maintenance parts for privately-owned automobiles, trucks, trailers, tractors, household refrigerators, stoves, ranges and water heaters, plumbing fixtures, and furnaces, hospital equipment, surgical instruments and eye-glass frames and parts.

Ships

The Maritime Commission said expansion of the merchant ship-building program requested from the Congress would provide 566 new ships by the end of 1943. Although only one of the 312 emergency cargo ships was scheduled for delivery this year at least 10 will be in operation by December 31, the Commission said. The fastest ship construction in the last war was seven months and 24 days, the Commission said, but it now hopes to reduce that time to 4½ to 5 months, with two ships completed every day in 1943.

The maritime Commission took title to 16 more Danish vessels and to four Italian vessels under provisions of the Ship Requisitioning Act and the Coast Guard seized 15 other Italian ships and one German ship to be put into service as soon as sabotage damage is repaired.

President Roosevelt signed legislation giving him power to grant defense materials priority in merchant shipping space and loading facilities.

Aluminum Collection

OPM Conservation Chief McConnell announced housewives' donations of used aluminum were during the collection campaign July 21-29 should permit construction of more than 2,000 additional fighting planes. He said tests indicated a minimum of 15,000,000 net pounds usable in defense manufacture will be collected in the national campaign. Civilian Defense Director LaGuardia said State Procurement offices of the Treasury Department will direct shipment of collected material from concentration points in each State to the nearest selected smelter.

Price Administrator Henderson said additional supplies of waste paper and cardboard are needed for packing articles produced by defense industries and urged that waste paper be saved by householders for collection by waste paper dealers.

Prices

Labor Secretary Perkins announced retail food prices increased 1.7 percent during the last two weeks of June, in addition to 1.6 percent in the first two weeks of the month. Principal rises were in the price of eggs, lard, butter, pork chops and canned tomatoes, she said.

President Roosevelt told his press conference that he is considering placing a ceiling on rents and on commodities and asked Congress to put "teeth" in price-fixing measures.

Price Administrator Henderson, speaking at Atlantic City, said costs and prices have risen at the wholesale level and will soon hit the nation's pocketbooks. Before long, he said, "there will be more purchasing power running around hunting something to buy than there are goods available."

WPA and Defense

WPA Commissioner Hunter said total average WPA employment during the 1942 fiscal year will be maintained at 1,000,000 instead of 1,700,000 as in the past year. He said almost 30 percent of all WPA workers were employed on national defense projects in June and cuts will be made more slowly from these projects than others.

Increased Wages

The Labor Department announced weekly earnings of wage earners in manufacturing industries in May rose to a new high of $30.69, a rise of 5 percent since this April and 21 percent over May, 1940. Hourly rates moved up to an average of 72.6 cents, a gain of 2.5 percent over April and 9.1 percent over the same month last year. The Department of Agriculture reported the general level of farm wages rose to the highest level in 11 years on July 1, 60 percent above the 1910-14 average.

Power for Defense

President Roosevelt asked Congress for authority to establish regional or nation-wide daylight saving time for all or such parts of the year as deemed practical. The Federal Power Commission reported that rainfall lessened the power shortage in the Southeast although much more rain is needed before full usage of energy can be permitted small consumers.

WEST BETHEL UNION CHAPEL
Don Fife, Minister

Not long ago an individual very sincerely stated his opinion that "religion is old fashioned; religion is for those who have backbone." This is the view held by so many people today, and yet this conception is found to be false by those of you who have found a rejuvenating force in religion. As worshippers gather in the West Bethel Union Chapel at 11 o'clock Sunday morning, July 27th, they will consider the theme: "What Use Religion," as presented in the sermon by Rev. Don Fife.

In the evening worship period, beginning at 7:30, the theme to be followed will be based upon the topic: "Meeting Our Problems."

Following the morning worship service, July 27th, the congregation will adjourn to Songo Pond for the West Bethel Union Chapel Picnic. All members and friends are invited to come to the morning worship at 11 o'clock, and then to be with us in our afternoon of fellowship.

The High School Young People's Society held its first meeting at the Chapel Tuesday evening. Following a brief devotional service, the group made plans for future meetings, and enjoyed refreshments prepared by Beverly Kneeland. The group will go to Papoose Pond leaving the church at 6:45 Tuesday evening, July 29th, for swimming and a "bender" roast.

The Boys' Club reports that the Roberts have 345 points and the Eagles have 250. The next contest for more points will be a Tether Tennis Tournament.
